Ahmose, prince, son of Seqenenre, Inscription on a statue of

Sethe
Transcription of a text on a statue of prince Ahmose, son of king Seqenenre and queen Ahhotep, following the transcription of Sethe (1927), number 2 (pp. 11-13).

Bibliography

Nederhof - English
Transliteration and translation of a text on a statue of prince Ahmose, son of king Seqenenre and queen Ahhotep, following the transcription of Sethe (1927), number 2 (pp. 11-13).
For published translations, see Sethe (1914), number 2 (pp. 6-7).

Bibliography
Prince Ahmose.
A royal offering; may Ptah and Osiris give a mortuary offering of bread, beer, oxen and fowl, and every good thing, [...] It is the good god, lord of the Two Lands, Son of Re: Tao, given life forever, who kept his name alive, so that you may do him a good deed every day. It is his sister who kept his name alive, the older princess Ahmose, so that you may do her every good deed in the necropolis, the princess Ahmose. It is his sister who kept his name alive, the younger princess Ahmose (may she live!),

1 With Uraeus.
Ne so that you may do her every good deed in the necropolis,

Ne for the princess Ahmose (may she live!). | A royal offering;

Ne may Ptah, Sokar and Osiris give a mortuary offering of bread, beer, oxen and fowl,

Ne and every good thing on which a god lives, for the oldest prince Ahmose, justified.

Ne It is the good god, Son of Re: Tao (may he live forever!), who kept his name alive.

Ne It is the older princess who unites with the white crown, Ahhotep, with Uraeus.

Ne who kept his name alive.